Health Care Reform, 1993-1994

In 1993 and 1994, the US had a big debate on the country’s health care system. Over the late 1980s and early 1990s, public concerns over health care had spiked sharply and—as the data in the line graph below show clearly—reached their high point around the time of the 1992 presidential election...

Question: Which of the following statements comes closest to expressing your overall view of the health care system in this country...There are some good things in our health care system, but fundamental changes are needed to make it better...Our health care system has so much wrong with it that we need to completely rebuild it...On the whole, the health care system works pretty well and only minor changes are necessary to make it work?

---

Line Graph:
- Good things now, but need big change
- Completely rebuild it
- Only minor changes needed

- 1992: 47%
- 1993: 28%
- 1994: 19%
- 1996: 11%

---

Source: Surveys by Louis Harris and Associates, latest that of April 4-7, 1994.

...But as the debate proceeded, opinion moved against the Clinton proposal.

Question: In general, do you favor or oppose President Clinton's health care reform plan?

---

Line Graph:
- Favor
- Oppose

- 1993: 57%
- 1994: 45%
- 1995: 42%

---

As the data below show, even the initial background judgements contained elements adverse to the Clinton proposals. The apparent finding that Americans saw a full blown health care "crisis"—taken by some analysts in 1992-93 to suggest strong support for action along the lines the Administration was proposing—in fact greatly overstated the public's view (charts at bottom of page).

Question: From what you know of the health care reforms which the Administration is working on, do you think the amount you pay for medical care will increase, decrease, or remain the same?

!Chart showing public opinion on health care costs

Source: Surveys by Yankelovich Partners, Inc., for Time/CNN, latest that of July 13-14, 1994.

Question: From what you know of the health care reforms which the [Clinton] Administration is working on, do you think the quality of medical care available to you will get better, get worse, or have no effect?

!Bar charts for 1993 and 1994

Source: Survey by Yankelovich Partners, Inc., for Time/CNN, September 23.

Question: Which of the following comes closest to your belief about the American health care system—the system is in crisis; the system has major problems, but is not in crisis; the system has problems, but they are not major; or the system has no problems?

!Bar charts for crisis, major problems, minor problems, and no problems

Source: Survey by NBC/Wall Street Journal, March 4-8, 1994.

Question: If health care reform is passed, do you think the quality of health care available to you will get better, become worse, or stay the same?

!Bar charts for 1994

Source: Survey by Yankelovich Partners, Inc., for Time/CNN, July 13-14.

Question: Which of these statements do you agree with more: The country has health care problems, but no health care crisis, or, the country has a health care crisis?

Form A

!Pie chart for Form A

Source: Survey by the Gallup Organization for USA Today/CNN, June 25-28, 1994.

Question: Which of these statements do you agree with more: The country has a health care crisis, or the country has health care problems, but no health care crisis?

Form B

!Pie chart for Form B
Thinking About Government

...The biggest reason for doubts about the popularity of Clinton's approach in 1993-1994 involved the widespread skepticism about a more government-centered health care system. Americans were not viscerally anti-government (top two charts), but they were certainly not enthusiastic about expanding government's reach and role....

Question: Turning to issues related to health care and health care reform... Do you think the federal government should guarantee health care for all Americans, or don't you think so?

![Pie chart showing 65% yes, 35% no.]

Source: Survey by Yankelovich Partners, Inc., for Time/CNN, July 13-14, 1994.

Question: Do you think Clinton's [health care] plan creates too much government involvement in the nation's health care system, not enough government involvement or about the right amount?

![Bar charts showing percentages for too little, about right, and too much.]

Question: Would you favor or oppose a health care plan which involves paying a direct tax like Social Security, and has the government administer the system instead of private insurance companies?

![Pie chart showing 35% favor, 57% oppose, 8% don't know.]

Source: Survey by the Gallup Organization for USA Today/CNN, April 16-18, 1994.

Question: For each issue I name, please tell me if you think the federal government can or cannot do much to make it better.... The health care system?

![Pie chart showing 79% can, 21% cannot.]

Source: Survey by ABC News/Washington Post, February 24-27, 1994.

Question: I'm going to mention things that might concern some people but not others about the Clinton health care plan...for each, please tell me if it's a big concern, a small concern, or not at all a concern of yours. How about...the plan would create another large and inefficient government bureaucracy?

![Pie chart showing 63% big concern, 23% small concern, 14% not a concern.]

Source: Survey by ABC News/Washington Post, February 24-27, 1994.

Question: Which of the following do you think would do the most effective job of controlling health care costs while maintaining the current quality of health care in this country—the federal government, regional organizations of consumers created by state governments, or the current system that relies on doctors, hospitals, and health insurance companies?

![Bar chart showing 40% federal government, 29% consumers organizations, 22% current system.]

Source: Survey by the Gallup Organization for USA Today/CNN, October 28-30, 1993.
Health Care Reform, 1997

In December 1997, 14% of Americans named issues of health care the country's most important problem—far down from the 1993 figures, but up from 1995. While there's lots of dissatisfaction with HMOs, more government regulation of them fails to get a ringing endorsement.

Question: What do you think is the most important problem facing this country today?

![Graph showing percentage preferences for health care, economic problems, and drugs from 1989 to 1997.][1]

Source: Surveys by the Gallup Organization.

Question: The number of Americans who rely on HMOs and other managed care health plans for health coverage continues to grow. Some people say...

- Government needs to protect consumers from being treated unfairly and not getting the care they should from managed care plans. 52%
- Additional government regulation isn't worth it because it would raise the cost of health insurance too much for everyone. 40%

Question: How often do you trust...

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Your current health insurance plan to do the right thing</th>
<th>Those in traditional fee-for-service care</th>
<th>Those in heavy managed care</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Just about always</td>
<td>55%</td>
<td>30%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Most of the time</td>
<td>34%</td>
<td>46%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Only some of the time</td>
<td>6%</td>
<td>22%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>None of the time</td>
<td>1%</td>
<td>1%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>